NEW YORK MAN KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Frank F. Davis, of New York, was killed in a wreck near Breezewood on Wednesday afternoon about four o'clock when the car in which he and his wife were riding skidded and probably overturned. Death was instantaneous. Mrs. Davis was bruised about the body but escaped without any serious injury. They were going west on the Highway and just how the accident happened no one seems to be able to tell. There seems to have been no eye witnesses to the accident, and if the car overturned it righted itself. It seems probable that it did overturn for the top was very badly damaged and the fenders also. The body of Mr. Davis was taken to Everett where Fred C. Pate prepared it for burial. As soon as some of the friends of the dead man arrive the body will be sent to New York.

LATE BLIGHT OF POTATOES SPREADING IN COUNTRY

Late blight is here again. Last year it took a heavy toll from Bedford County potato growers causing premature death to the vines and rotten potatoes at digging time. The same loss is threatened to occur this year.

Unfortunately there is no satisfactory curative measure, according to County Agent L. R. Mollenauer who says "late blight can be prevented but not cured once the disease has set in."

At least two men in the county are prepared for anything which might happen to a field of potatoes. These men are John Crilly, Imler, Pa., and Herman Dively, McNeil farms, Bakers Summit. Both of these men bought spraying outfits and have been spraying all summer under the direction of the County Agent and Dr. E. L. Nixon, plant pathologist of the Pennsylvania State College.

In both these demonstrations unraveled rows have been left through the field and Bedford County farmers will be interested to learn of the increased yields from spraying when the crop is lifted.

Last year an average increase of 74 1/2 bu. per acre was obtained from spraying in Pennsylvania. There demonstrations covered 6,193 acres in all.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN ON LABOR DAY

The first day of school will require the presence of all school children from nine to ten o'clock in the morning. The work of the first day will consist of registration, distribution of supplies and text books, lessons and seat assignments. After that the children will be dismissed for the day. All grade children will report to the grade rooms indicated on their promotion cards; all High School students report to the Assembly Hall.

New entrants and children who are unable to locate the report cards given them at the end of last year are required to secure admission cards in the Principal's office. For this purpose the Principal will observe office hours on Friday, September 2, from 1 to 4 p. m. and Saturday, September 3, from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. The special attention of new entrants, except those holding eighth grade certificates, and of persons desiring consultation with the Principal is called to these office hours.

This school year there will not be mid-year entrance to the Primary grade. All children becoming six years of age before July 1, 1922 should be entered at the beginning of the school year. This is a new ruling. All children must present a certificate of successful vaccination. Parents are requested to have children registered by the Principal on September 2 and 3.

The High School course of study is essentially the same as last year and will be published in a subsequent issue of this paper.

KELLER, REPUBLICAN, INDICTS ADMINISTRATION.

No attack made upon the Republican administration to date has caused more comment than that made by Representative Keller (Rep., Minnesota), one of the really important men of the great Northwest. No Democratic has been so severe in his criticism of the administration as Mr. Keller, because the Democrats have been charitable toward the struggling administration, and sincerely desirous of aiding it to solve the problem that Conference is largely as a result of the obstructive tactics of the Republicans in the last two years of the Democratic administration.

Some of the indictments brought against the Republican party by this able Republican, representing a great agricultural constituency are:

"Our ability to compete with other nations for world markets—and consequently our prosperity—primarily depends on reasonable transportation charges, cheap power, low interests, easy rents, low taxation, efficient labor and systematic distribution. We have adopted a policy which has brought about the exact reverse of these ideal conditions."

The government has attempted to legislate upon every one of these vital problems within the past six months, but instead of honestly searching for the best way out of our industrial difficulties and welcoming the disinterested advice of economists, scientists, engineers, real financiers and experts in various lines, the machinery of government has been commandeered by a little clique, ignorant of the A. B. C.'s of economics, whose blind obedience to Wall Street is responsible for the stupid, selfish and short-sighted policy that is retarding our prosperity and creating profound distrust and discontent among the people.

"The President has assumed more power than any of his predecessors and tells Congress what bills to pass—and what not to pass. Bills concocted at secret conference are introduced, without being referred to responsible committees."

"The Ways and Means Committee has demonstrated its utter unfitness to deal intelligently with the great financial measures on which to a great degree the prosperity of the country depends."

"There are rules of taxation just as well established as the laws of mathematics. But instead of calling in competent experts, the Ways and Means Committee seeks the advice of a multimillionaire Cabinet officer. He suggests repeal of the excess profit tax, reduction of the higher surtax rates on individual incomes, increase of the corporation tax, retention of the ruinous transportation tax and the nuisance taxes, with new impositions on automobiles and bank checks and increased rates on first-class postage."

"This policy will further depress industry and fail to raise sufficient revenue for the government needs. Less than 5,000 persons—most of them war profiteers—pay the higher surtaxes on incomes of more than $100,000 annually, yet Secretary Mellon wants to cut in half the $500,000,000 which they contributed to the upkeep of the government and throw the additional burden upon small manufacturers, jobbers, merchants and workers of the home."

"Most members of the House want to carry out the people's wishes, but a little, dominant minority has tied down the safety valve of free discussion until an explosion impends which will scatter the Republican party from Maine to California."

And the Harding administration is not yet six months old

THE WOODROW WILSON FOUNDATION

The purpose of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, recently organized as a tribute to the former President, have been definitely defined by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the National Foundation Committee, together with the terms of award, as follows:

Created by public subscription in recognition of the national and international services of Woodrow Wilson, twice President of the United States, who furthered the cause of human freedom and was instrumental in pointing out effective methods for the co-operation of the liberal forces of mankind throughout the world.

"The award or awards from the income of the foundation will be made from time to time by a nationally constituted committee to the individual or group that has rendered, within a specified period, meritorious service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought or peace through justice."

The Woodrow Wilson Foundation is non-partisan; in fact, a non-political organization, and will endeavor to raise $1,000,000, upon which to base awards. The appeal for funds is to be made to all admirers of the former President, Democrats, Republicans and Independents.

Cleveland H. Dodge is Chairman of the Executive Committee and Hamilton Holt, editor of the New York Independent, is Executive Director. The headquarters of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation are at No. 150 Nassau Street, New York City.

TAXES ARE BURDENSOME AND THE REPUBLICANS KNOW IT

Washington, D. C., Aug.—Upon President Harding's return to Washington from his latest vacation in New Hampshire, it was agreed among Republican leaders after a conference with the Executive that Congress will take a recess after the passage by the House of the tax bill, which at this writing has not been introduced, the passage of the Farmer's Relief program and the extension of the Emergency Tariff act until the permanent tariff law shall be enacted.

This means, of course, that the tax bill, which should be one of the most carefully considered of all, will be rushed through at high speed, thus recalling a recent colloquy in the House as follows:

Mr. MONDELL (Rep. floor leader). The tax bill will pass the House much sooner than the date the gentleman fixes

Mr. MANN (former Rep. floor leader). I hope not. A good tax bill will not pass then if it passes quickly. The sooner it passes the poorer it will be if it passes without consideration in the Committee and without consideration in the House. What I said a while ago would then be true, God help the country! (Applause.)

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HIS OWN BROTHER

Revolver Goes Off as Mart Garlock Hands it to His Brother Owen Bullett Striking the Heart Which Results in Instant Death—Mart Distracted.

REVOLVER WAS SELF-ACTING

One of the most sad accidents happened on Tuesday afternoon, resulting in the death of Owen Garlock son of Louis Garlock, well-known in Saxton, that has ever taken place in this vicinity.

A number of boys had been camping in the cabin on the island below the Berkstresser dam, and on Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock George McCahan, Owen and Mart Garlock were on their way to the cabin, where they intended spending the night and before they went into the boat stopped at a spring to fix a pipe where they got their drinking water. While McCahan was leaning over fixing the pipe Owen Garlock noticed the revolver in McCahan's shirt and reached and pulled it out. After examining it he handed it to his brother Mart, about 12 years of age who wanted it. Mart fired at a tree and then turned to give the revolver back to Owen when it discharged, the ball striking Owen in the right breast and, as it is supposed took a course striking the heart. It is said the only words spoken by Owen after the shooting were, "What will we do," just before he fell forward and died.

Mart on realizing what had happened rushed home, telling his father of the terrible accident and then fell in a swoon. The father went to the scene of the shooting and found that Owen was dead.

Doctors were summoned and Dr. Evans and Dr. Cornelius of Riddlesburg were on the scene a short time after, but they could render no aid.

Owen was 16 years of age, and leaves to mourn his loss his father and mother two sisters, Mary and Veda and one brother, Mart.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Stickler in the Church of God at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and the interment took place in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S VACATIONS.

The forthcoming recess of Congress calls an attempt of that body to take a vacation some time ago, but the understanding is that an adjournment at that time was strongly opposed by the administration. Since then many of the Congressmen have followed the example of the President by taking impromptu vacations, and the roll call shows as heavy a falling off relatively as election votes in an off year.

In the meantime as Congress sweltered and marked time while Chairman Fordney's Ways and Means Committee was drafting a tariff bill and a tax bill for the Senate to rewrite, President Harding made a pretty good record as a vacationist.

Not counting horseback riding in the morning and golf in the afternoon, both of which are undoubtedly good for a President's health, a casual glance over President Harding's itinerary since late spring shows the following:

April 28—President and Mrs. Harding sailed for Hampton Roads on the Mayflower, accompanied by five United States Senators, his physician and his secretary and the wives of two of the senators, returning April 30.

May 9—Cruise on the Mayflower.

May 24—Trip to New York where he spoke at a newspaper anniversary dinner.

May 30—Trip to Pohick, Va., where he made a public address.

June 4—Trip to Valley Forge, returning June 7.

July 1—Trip to Raritan, N. J., returning July 6.

July 9—Cruise on the Mayflower, returning July 11.

Daniels Tells of Wilson as Great Strategist in Naval War

President Wilson as a Strategist—He wanted America to be in a position on land and water to whip Germany, even if the allies had to quit. From the first a strong advocate of unified command. He insisted that American forces must be organized as American army units. Urged audacity, as naval policy for the allied and associated powers. "Crush the hornets' nest, or prevent the escape of the hornets." President favored convoy system and mine barrage. Woodrow Wilson as a boy had his heart set on a naval career.

By Josephus Daniels
Former Secretary of the Navy

ARTICLE 7

President Wilson never left my office, and I never left a white house conference during the war years, without the reflection shaping itself in my mind that the world had lost a great military leader when it gained a great educator and executive.

It was President Wilson, who, before we entered the war, saw that the only hope of the allies lay in achieving the unity of command.

It was President Wilson who advocated this policy when we gained the right to a voice in the military councils of those who were fighting the central empires.

It was President Wilson who resisted the urging of some of his American advisers, and of the British and French military authorities, to permit our American soldiers to be used merely as replacement troops for the allied armies.

It was President Wilson who insisted that the American forces must be organized as American units, under American command, and who sustained Gen. Pershing in carrying this policy into effect at the earliest possible moment.

It was President Wilson who contended that America must be in position on land and water to carry the war through to victory, even if the allies were forced to abandon it.

Stay Through Till Victory

This extreme possibility he envisaged, and when we entered the war he had resolved that whatever might befall Great Britain, France, Italy or Japan, the United States would stick until autocracy was beaten. It was this resolute purpose which made his leadership so inspiring to those of us who served with him through days which were always anxious and not infrequently discouraging.

In matters affecting the navy he was as wise and as forcible as in military matters.

He saw at once the vital importance of making egress for the U-boat difficult if not impossible. If it was not practicable to go into the rat holes and kill all the rats, the same end might be attained by stopping the holes up, or failing even that, by setting traps so thickly around the holes that rats attempting to get by would run serious peril of being caught.

Wilson's Genius in War

Newton Baker could tell many an incident to illustrate the almost inspired genius of Woodrow Wilson in dealing with army problems. I have no doubt he will come day. Naturally I am more familiar with his gift of strategy as displayed in the solving of naval problems. Before I relate some incidents from my own experience which throw light upon this phase of the former president's many-sided character, I want to outline more fully the general situation and circumstances which form the basis for the assertions I have made concerning his military leadership in the opening paragraphs of this article.

Almost immediately following our declaration of war we began hearing from Great Britain and France suggestions as to the wise course for us to pursue in such armed help as we might be able to give.

Obviously we had no ready-made, trained and disciplined army to send overseas—at least not of such strength as to be a considerable factor in the situation. It was not unnatural, nor wholly unreasonable that the allies should suggest the best plan for us to follow would be to place such force as we could raise under allied command, where in association with the trained and veteran troops of France and Great Britain, they would find support and learn more readily the lessons that the fighting man must know.

President Vetoes Plan

Admiral Sims, together with some other Americans, were inclined to agree with the allies that this plan was the one we should adopt.

But not so the president. He dismissed the proposal as soon as he heard of it. Gen. Pershing was equally emphatic in repudiating it. If Gen. Pershing had recommended it, I believe President Wilson would have been tempted most strongly to recall him. The president believed America could raise and train an expeditionary force big enough and quickly enough to take its equal place in the field with the veteran armies and to do its full share to bring victory. He had faith in American capacity, and he knew that Americans would never fight so well under alien leadership as they would under the command of their own officers.

But this determination on the president's part to keep the American forces independent neither prevented the use of American troops in the brigades of British and French armies during the days while our strength was assembling, nor the strong urging of America to give the independent armies of the allied and associated powers the unified command which was essential to their effective co-operation and coordination.

Put Foch at Head

As soon as our strength in France had reached proportions which the president felt gave us just right to speak, he joined with Lloyd George in putting through the plan to make Gen. Foch the head of the allied and associated armies.

The president followed the development of the military and naval strategy of the contending nations with keenest and most critical interest before we entered the war.

I recall his saying to me on one occasion:

"Daniels, why don't the British convoy their merchant ships and thus protect them from the submarines?"

He came back to this question frequently. He could not see the wisdom of the British plan of dispersion, although there were some able American naval officers who approved it. To him it seemed a false strategy.

This opinion became a conviction with him as the sinkings continued, and the situation grew daily more serious.

Strongly Favors Convoy

"This theory of reducing the danger of sailing ships separately, has been demonstrated to be wrong," he would say. "Why bow with their distressing experiences, do they hesitate to adopt the convoy system?"

Finally the convoy system was adopted. It took the American expeditionary force to France without the loss of a man on an American transport through enemy action. It justified in the eyes of the naval authorities of three great nations the wisdom of the scholarly idealist, whose genius for practical suggestions never ceased to be a cause for wonder and admiration on the part of those who were closely associated with him.

His brilliant mind gave further evidence of its gift for strategy in his contention from the day we entered the war that the only way to beat the U-boat warfare of Germany was to bar the U-boat from access to waters traversed by allied shipping.

Willing to Take Risk

He was willing to run tremendous risks and to suffer heavy losses if there were a possibility of destroying the U-boats nests.

Speaking to the officers and crew of the Pennsylvania, he said:

"We are hunting hornets all over the farm and letting the nests alone. None of us know how to get to the nest and crush it, and yet I despair of hunting for hornets all over the seas when I know where the nest is, and I know that the nest is breeding hornets as fast as I can find them. I am willing, for my part, and I know you are willing to sacrifice half the navy Great Britain and we together have to crush the nest, because if we crush it the war is won."

The British admiralty, however, was inclined to be exceedingly cautious, and the president's proposals failed to evoke the response he had reason to hope for.

"Every time we have suggested anything to the British admiralty," he said talking on the deck of the Pennsylvania in the summer of 1917, "the reply has come back that virtually amounts to this: That it has never been done in that way. I felt like saying, 'Well nothing was ever done so systematically as nothing is being done now.' Therefore I should like to see something unusual happen, something that never has been done before. There is no other way to win."

Calls for Suggestions

It was on this occasion that he invited the youngest as well as the oldest officers in the navy to suggest to him possible ways of doing the big and bold and unprecedented thing that might bring victory.

"I am not saying," he declared, "that I do not expect the admirals to tell us what to do, but I am saying that I want the youngest and most modest youngster in the service to tell us what we ought to do, if he knows what it is."

"Please leave out of your vocabulary the word 'prudent'," he said to the naval officers. "Do not stop to think about what is prudent for a moment. Do the thing that is audacious to the utmost point of risk and daring, because that is exactly what the other side does not understand."

The president had sized up correctly the enemy mind—rigid, conventional, regimented. In order to surprise and bewilder him it was necessary only to do the thing that was daringly irregular, contrary to established rules.

Mayo Sent to Europe

Soon after the president made his hornet nest speech, Admiral Mayo, commander-in-chief of all the vessels afloat on both sides of the Atlantic, was dispatched to Europe with instructions to convince the British admiralty of the overshadowing necessity of constructing the North sea barrage.

Failing the possibility of persuading the British admiralty to join in a combined attack upon the hornets nests, the president proposed the stretching of a screen that would catch the hornets before they scattered along the British and French coasts and lanes of ocean traffic.

I have told the story of this remarkable achievement in another of the articles in this series. The president warmly approved the navy's plans for the northern mine barrage, which did so much to shatter the morale of the German navy, whose mutiny marked the beginning of the enemy's collapse.

During the war years the president often came unannounced to the navy department, to consult, suggest and I think, frequently with the desire to encourage and stimulate. This latter service was invaluable to us. When he could not come because of pressure of affairs, he would send us a typewritten query, or memorandum, bearing the initials "W. W." Those "W. W." notes never had a spare word, and they showed the same clearness and vision which John Hay tells us Lincoln had when he would go over to see Stanton in the dark days of the civil war.

Keen Naval Instinct

President Wilson's interest was neither perfunctory nor official. He had the keenest naval instinct. He was born with it. When Thomas Woodrow Wilson was a boy—before he dropped the "Thomas"—he chose for himself a naval career.

His boyhood was spent on the banks of a river, and he loved boating next to books, or at times even more than books. He had a penchant for sailing; he loved sea tales, and his ambition was to follow Jones and Farragut and Dewey.

Thomas Woodrow's father a scholarly Presbyterian preacher of the old school vetoed the naval career. When the chance came to go to Annapolis, he said in substance: "No; you are not meant for the sea, my son; letters, books, statesmanship for you."

It is not recorded that Thomas Woodrow replied: "Aye, aye, sir," with a nautical brevity and cheerfulness, but certain it is that he accepted his father's decree. The navy lost an officer who would have destroyed many precedents and won many victories, when his father snatched him from the topsail and sent him down below to the study of languages and political economy.

WINTER SHELTER FOR DUCKS

Breeding Fowls Must Be Furnished With Some Protection Against Cold Rains and Snow.

Although adult ducks are so well protected by their feathers that they can stand a great deal of dry cold weather, the breeding birds must be furnished protection from the cold winter rains and snows and they must have a dry floor on which to roost. Therefore a suitable shed or building should be made available for the fowls before the coming of winter. The building may be quite simple in construction and much less expensive than one for hens.

BLACKHEAD IS MOST DEADLY

Cases of Infection Are Few Where Turkeys Are Given Free Range at All Seasons.

Of the infectious diseases of turkeys, blackhead is the most destructive. It is notable that whenever the climate and range conditions are such as to permit of the turkeys foraging for most of their feed from the time they are hatched until they are marketed, cases of blackhead are infrequent. No positive cure for blackhead has been found, but free range and care not to overfeed are very important factors in raising turkeys successfully.

COWPEA HAY BEST FOR COWS

Crop Has but Little Standing in City Markets on Account of Difficulty in Curing.

Cowpea hay is said by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture to be better suited for feeding to cows than to horses. Partly on this account and partly because of the difficulty often experienced in properly curing the large growth of succulent vines and its coarseness and unevenness in quality, cowpea hay has but little standing in the city markets.

She Meant Well.

To say the fitting thing in acknowledgment of a favor is something of a tax on the conversational powers of most people; when the recipient is unfamiliar with the conventional phrases used or gets confused in using them, comical situations occur, as in this instance reported in Harper's Magazine. Two sisters of a deceased cook called to acknowledge the flowers sent by the family. "We came to thank you for those beautiful flowers that you sent for sister," said the elder woman; and then, with a little stutter, she added, "and we hope soon to be able to return the favor."—From the Outlook.

About the only quill pens one sees in the United States now are on the stage or are ornaments on a lady's writing desk in her chamber. An actor playing the part of a statesman or a king or a general of one hundred or more years ago will write his message with a goose quill pen and instead of using blotting paper will sprinkle sand out of a salt shaker to soak up the surplus wet ink.

In one year automobile history has been rewritten

Times like the present bring out the best in men and products. In one year motor car reputations have been made and unmade. Twelve months have seen former leaders pass into the shadows. And yet during this same period of readjustment automobile history has been rewritten by Briscoe.

Today wherever the motor-wise hold forth you will hear one man after another go on record for Briscoe as the outstanding value in its price class or anywhere near it. Thousands of these endorsers have backed their judgment by signing their names on the dotted line.

The opinion of these car-owners is important but the verdict of the automobile distributor and dealer is far greater recommendation. And since April first, 24 new distributors and 214 new dealers have contracted for Briscoe cars which run into millions of dollars.

All of these men have been handling other cars. They could be handling them today. Many of them have divorced themselves from factories after years of association.

Why have these veteran judges of value come to Briscoe?

These men know the inside of the automobile business. They realize that in many factories manufacturing principles and practice have been in constant struggle with price. They know—better than the car-buyer—in how many instances price has won the decision hands down.

These men have a responsibility to their customers. They cannot afford to sell a car, where quality has been shaved to meet a competitor's price. They know you and your neighbor buy a car to own and drive. They want to deliver lasting satisfaction with every sale.

They know the real quality Clarence A. Earl and his organization are building into every Briscoe. Their years of experience tell them Briscoe at $1085 is a better car than it has ever been in its history, although the price was reduced $200 on July 1st.

They know no other car in its price class is giving the buyer such necessary accessories as windshield wings, bumpers front and rear, motometer and running board mats.

You owe it to yourself to buy the value of today and not the reputation of yesterday. Come in now and let us show you the positive proofs why Briscoe is better—why it is the car of extra visible value.

I'd walk a mile for a Camel

The pleasure is worth it. There's no substitute for Camel quality and that mild, fragrant Camel blend.

The fellow who smokes Camels, wants Camels. That's because Camels have a smoothness, a fragrance and a mildness you can't get in another cigarette.

Don't let anyone tell you that any other cigarette at any price is so good as Camels.

Let your own taste be the judge. Try Camels for yourself. A few smooth, refreshing puffs and you'd walk a mile for a Camel, too.

LESSON FOR AUGUST 21.

PAUL PREPARES FOR WORLD CONQUEST.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1; 16:5.
GOLDEN TEXT—But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved.—Acts 15:11.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Gal. 2:11-21; 5:1-26; Eph. 2:4-22.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Some of Paul's Helpers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Beginning of the Second Missionary Journey.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Revisiting Friends in Asia Minor.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul Champions Christian Liberty.

1. The Controversy in the Church at Antioch (vv. 1-5).

This difficulty was a most serious one, for it threatened the disruption of the church into Jewish and Gentile divisions.

The question was, "Shall Gentile converts be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation?" This issue was brought on by the coming of certain men from Jerusalem who declared, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved" (v. 1). The question was so difficult that Paul and Barnabas were unable to put them to silence. These Jewish legalists had the letter of the Scriptures on their side; they could point to the commandments where this was enjoined upon believers (Gen. 17:14). Paul could not point to any Scripture where it had been abrogated. If Paul could plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonist could say, "Yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed." The brethren at Antioch decided to refer the matter to the mother church at Jerusalem. Accordingly Paul and Barnabas and others were sent as a deputation to Jerusalem.

11. The Deliberations of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter's Speech (vv. 7-11). He argued that God had borne witness to His acceptance of the Gentiles by giving the Holy Spirit to them the same as unto the Jews. Since, therefore, God had not put a difference it would be folly for them to do so. God's action in sending Peter unto them was the unanswerable proof that there was no distinction to be made.

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearse their experience (v. 12). They told how that God had set His seal of approval upon their preaching of salvation by grace through faith apart from works, by the working of signs and wonders through them.

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with the prophecy of Amos. He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict with God's plan, but in strict harmony therewith. God's plan for the ages is as follows: (1) Taking out from among the Gentiles a people for His name (v. 14). This is what is now going on—the calling out of the church. (2) After the church is completed and removed the Israelitish nation will be converted and restored to their land and privileges by the Lord himself at His return (vv. 16, 17). (3) Following this will be the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17; cf. Rom. 11:15). His judgment was that the Gentiles should not be troubled with things that are Jewish, but should be warned against the perils of heathenism, such as meat offered to idols, fornication, and blood.

111. The Decision (vv. 22-29).

The mother church at Jerusalem came to a unanimous agreement and accepted the resolution offered by James. They not only sent a letter stating the decision of the conference, but took the wise precaution to send influential men along with Paul and Barnabas to bear the same testimony by word of mouth. This letter denied the authority of the Judaizing teachers (v. 24), and declared the method by which this decision had been reached (vv. 25-27).

IV. The Second Missionary Journey Begun (15:36; 16:5).

1. Contention over John Mark (vv. 36-41). Paul was suspicious of Mark because of his desertion on the former journey. Barnabas took Mark and sailed to Cyprus. Paul chose Silas and went through Syria and Cilicia confirming the churches. The Lord thus overruled it to good, for it gave an opportunity for wider dissemination of the gospel.

2. Finding Timothy (16:1-5). This was at the very place where Paul on his first journey had endured cruel stoning. Timothy was with Paul through much of his work ever afterward, a great blessing to him.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Mildewed gloves may be hung in a wooden box in which is placed a saucer containing ammonia; cover tightly and the fumes in the course of a day will drive away the mildew.

When a tablecloth used for the first time is soiled by a stain or spot, stretch the cloth over embroidery hoops and remove the spot. When dry, press and the cloth is fresh again.

Oranges, cut in small bits with the rind left on, are especially nice to give to a fever patient who needs something often to cool the mouth.

If cracked ice is to be used in the sickroom, it will keep longer if a piece of cheesecloth is tied over the bowl and the ice kept in it. Cover the bowl with another and place a paper bag over both. This will save many steps to renew the ice.

For the bed-ridden who get so tired lying in one position, the following help will be greatly appreciated: Tie stout new cotton cloth strips on each side of the headboard or bed-frame, having a large knot in the end of each strip to hold. By grasping these supports one may raise up or change position easily. The knots may be slipped under the pillow when not in use.

For tired feet, a mixture of baking soda and talcum, sprinkled into the shoes, will give great relief. For corns and callouses, keep them covered with adhesive tape, renewing as often as the bathing of the feet removes the plaster. This keeps the hard places soft.

In applying adhesive plaster to a wound, use short strips with tapes fastened to the strips, which may be untied, the dressing changed and retied without disturbing the adhesive at all.

A simple method to clean silver blackened from use is to place the silver in an aluminum dish with a teaspoonful each of baking soda and salt. Do not boil too long, for silver which is thinly coated may be entirely removed. One may use a piece of aluminum in a granite dish as the solution will roughen a good dish.

Forms of Insanity.

The Art alliance, at a meeting in Philadelphia, took uncommon steps to diagnose and classify "modernist art." The alliance called in two specialists, Dr. W. S. Wadsworth and Dr. Charles W. Burr, who are by profession alienists. They examined all the symptoms and their decision was "insane." Now, if the same test could be applied to vers librists we might get some valuable information as to the mental state of some of our poets.—Philadelphia Record.

Be True to Yourself.

Cutting Children's Ears.

It is a senseless practice to cut children's ears, and arises from a foolish superstition. Many years ago it was thought that backward children could be cured by making an incision in a certain part of their ears. The belief exists in some parts of the country today, the operation being performed usually by a woman at the change of the moon. Needless to say, it results only in pain and misery for the child.—London Tit-Bits.

Too Much Welfaring.

People for countless generations have survived and thriven without aid of legislation for their welfare. The world is being welfared too much. Much of the object is to create jobs for welfarers.—Portland Oregonian.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Most of the critical things in life, which become the starting points of human destiny, are little things.—P. Smith.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Serve green onions often as well as asparagus, but vary the methods of serving. It takes 20 stalks of 8-inch asparagus to meet the allowance of one calorie portion. As most of the flavor vegetables lack fuel value, though rich in mineral salts, they are best served with a full allowance of some food which provides fuel.

Puree of Onions.—Peel, slice and parboil six-medium-sized onions; drain and put into a soup kettle with one-fourth of a cupful of butter; stir and cook until a light yellow; add one-third of a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and stir until well blended; add one quart of veal broth and stir until boiling; add a second quart of broth and let simmer until the onions are tender; strain through a fine sieve, pressing all the onion through that is possible. Reheat and add salt, pepper, and serve with bread buttered and browned in the oven. When serving sprinkle a teaspoonful of finely-minced parsley over the soup.

Spanish Steaks.—Have two pounds of round steak cut two inches thick from the top of the round. Leave the fat on the meat and pan broil in a hot frying pan until well browned on both sides. Add three-fourths of a cupful of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes. Spread over the meat a layer of sliced onions, sprinkling them lightly with salt and pepper. Cover and let cook an hour. Lay the solid part of a can of tomatoes over the onions and return to the oven for 15 minutes. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese and return to the oven long enough to melt the cheese. The steak should be very tender with a thick sauce. The cooking must be done in a moderate oven.

Luncheon Rabbit.—Melt one-half pound of cheese over hot water. In a separate dish turn a can of tomato soup. Beat and season well with paprika. Turn the melted cheese into the hot soup and beat. Turn the rabbit dressing over toasted rounds of heated bread and serve with crisp celery and hot coffee.

USE OF SWEET CLOVER IN PENNSYLVANIA

Owing to the success of sweet clover in certain sections of the West, a great deal of interest has been manifested in it throughout Pennsylvania, particularly the eastern part. The place of sweet clover in Pennsylvania farming has not yet been fully established, but it is doubtful if it will ever be generally adopted except for special purposes and for special situations where soil is too low in fertility for other clover. Some interesting data on this clover has been received by County Agent L. R. Mollenauer from Nicholas Schmitz, extension agronomist at the Pennsylvania State College.

Sweet clover requires a high lime content of the soil, equal to alfalfa, and like it, requires inoculation. It will have its greatest value to Pennsylvania Agriculture in improving land of low fertility that has been limed and fertilized with acid phosphate; as a pasture plant on rough land well limed, and as a cover crop for plowing down in the spring.

An annual white sweet clover recently developed in one of the Western states has not yet been fairly tried in Pennsylvania. and seed is not as yet on the market in commercial quantities at a fair price. It is only an annual and its use will be restricted to plowing down as a green manure crop under special conditions. On short rotations it may be seeded in wheat in the spring and plowed down for potatoes. Planted in gardens it has grown several feet in height, but it is doubtful if it will grow more than two feet tall when sown as ordinary clover. There is nothing known about it that would warrant farmers paying the present high price for the seed.

Some early results on the yield of Pennsylvania 44 wheat cut on test this season by farmers in various parts of the state indicate an average yield of twenty-four bushels to the acre with the best of other varieties yielding an average of but eighteen bushels. This yield shows that the new wheat developed by the Pennsylvania State College school of Agriculture and experiment station is holding its reputation as a record breaker. The college last week threshed its seed wheat crop and obtained a yield of forty bushels per acre from Pennsylvania Forty-Four, which is expected to be at least five bushels more than Reliable, the only other variety raised on the college farms this year. On the experimental variety tests Forty-Four will out-yield its nearest competitor by at least three bushels.

WOOD MAY TAKE POST IN ISLANDS

RUMOR THAT HE WILL BE MADE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF THE PHILIPPINES.

NATIVES WANT HIM APPOINTED

Sending the Woods-Forbes Mission Was a Diplomatic Step Toward the Refusal to Grant the Philippine Immediate Independence.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—There has been considerable interest in Washington in the whisper in administration circles that Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, now in the Philippines on inquiry bent, may once more be asked to take the governor generalship of the islands, and that possibly he may accept it.

The country has understood that General Wood already has accepted the place of provost of the University of Pennsylvania. It is possible that he has not committed himself wholly in this matter, and if he should change his mind, or, rather, if he feels that he can change it, his friends say that the action will be due to things that he feels he has learned in the Philippines and to pressure which has been brought to bear upon him to undertake the Philippines duty.

The conception of the Wood-Forbes mission to the Philippines was curious. There is not the slightest doubt that the administration, or rather the War department, which is the same thing in this case "new everything that was going on in the Philippines, and really needed no report even from such a deep student of affairs as the general. The word is that the administration wanted something which it could put forward definitely as the basis of future dealings with the Filipinos, and that rather than use the documents and information already in the hands of the War department, it concluded that what it intended to do in the islands would be better received when based on a new report.

Bureau Undoubtedly Knew.

There is a bureau of insular affairs functioning in Washington. It is a stabilized bureau and for years it has been doing executive work. Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards was for years its chief and his first assistant was Frank McIntyre, now a major general and the successor of Edwards in the insular bureau. While the bureau could not play politics, nor even in a way play policy, it unquestionably is believed that under the recent administration not only the bent of mind of the President, but the feelings of the Filipinos themselves led to the general belief that the government's wards had expected independence and that almost instantly.

It is said by the opponents of granting such liberty that there never has been a belief among the men who really know about Philippine affairs that the islands are yet fitted for independence. It is asserted that idealism and a "self-determinationism" figured in the matter of a former presidential suggestion that the Filipinos should be given their liberty and figured also in the movements made in the islands to bring about liberation.

When the present administration came into power it probably was told bluntly by some of the officials that the "Little Brown Brother" of former President Taft is not at the advanced stage of citizenship and executive ability which will make him fit for the job of self-government.

It readily can be seen that if General Wood and W. Cameron Forbes, had not been sent to the Philippines on a mission, the administration would have been compelled to act on information which the War department already possessed, but which it would be charged came from prejudiced sources, although the sources hardly can be conceived as prejudiced, because the War department's American guardians of the Filipino brother always have been fair to him.

Filipinos Want Wood.

Now it is held that General Wood is the only man who, because of the feeling of respect which the Filipinos have for him, will be able as governor general to carry out the administration's policy of deferring the day of freedom. The word is that the Filipinos themselves want General Wood, and yet they must know what this will mean to their hopes for instant liberation from the binding tie.

From outward appearances there was every reason to believe when this administration took office that it was not over keen to do anything for General Wood. Perhaps the President himself was willing to do something, and one can put this stronger than by qualifying it with a "perhaps," but there were influences at work which were powerful in preventing the offer of any high recognition by the administration.

Reduced Taxes Not Likely.

How much is the tax bill of the American citizen to be cut by the revenue measure which before the frost comes will have a place upon the statute books of the United States?

It is a mighty hard thing to tell. It may not be cut at all, and it may be increased, but perhaps the country generally speaking will feel that it has been relieved a bit by the shifting of burdens of taxation from one place to

If, for instance, they should take the tax off something which all men, women and children buy nearly every day of their lives, the people probably would feel that they had been relieved of some expense, forgetting perhaps the tax would go somewhere else and that in the long run it might have its effect upon them.

The plain truth about taxation is that the government needs a huge amount of money to pay the interest on its bonds and to pay its running expenses. There is only one way to raise this money, and that is by taxation, except of course through tariff, and some persons maintain that the tariff is a tax. It follows, therefore, that unless the expenses of government are cut, taxation cannot be cut. It is not Uncle Sam's fault that bills fall due and it is a credit, of course, to his honesty that he wants to pay them.

Little Reduction in Sight.

There was a strong belief that taxation this year might be cut materially. It is the solid truth today, however, to say that few men in congress seemingly believe that any great amount of the burden can be lifted. The chairman of the house committee on ways and means, Mr. Fordney, says that the attempt will be to cut half a billion dollars from the tax bill of next year. His fellow members of the committee are very much less optimistic. They say that they do not want to make any promises because if disappointment shall come the promises will return to plague them.

All the members of congress, members of the minority party as well as of the majority, seem to be in sympathy with the proposal to repeal the transportation taxes, those which hit freight as they hit the passenger by land and sea. When a man travels today he not only pays a good deal more for his straight ticket than he did a few years ago, but he has to pay a tax in addition, and as Americans like to travel, this form of taxation has been felt keenly.

It has been said that the taxes collected each year from the passengers and the freight shippers amount to considerably more than one-third of a billion dollars. Of course if this tax is lifted the third of a billion dollars must be raised in some other way and as yet no specific plan for doing it has developed. It seems likely today that only a part of the transportation tax will be lifted.

The government is going to save some money this year through economy in the administration of the departments. Through the efforts of the budget commission, and of the congressional committee plus a non-congressman who is its chairman, and which is charged with the work of reorganizing the departments, the chances seem to be that several hundred millions of dollars will be saved.

Expenses Increase Yearly.

The trouble is, however, that the government is growing all the time and that its ordinary expenses increase from year to year. Therefore it seems that if the saving will offset the legitimate increase arising from the growth of the government, it will do about all that it can be expected to do. Of course it is a saving nevertheless.

The army will not cost as much as it did last year, nor will the navy cost quite as much, but the sea service will come pretty near to equaling its last year's expenditures. Congress as a whole, Democrats and Republicans together, agreed that the navy should be maintained at close to its last year's efficiency, while congress as a whole seemed perfectly willing that the army should be cut so materially that today army officers fear the service actually will be crippled badly.

Society Hopes for Princes.

Washington actually has started preparing for the disarmament and Far East conference which is to open here some time in the gray month of November. It is a long time in advance, and yet already hotels are being requested to make reservations for what may be called arriving day. Those persons, however, who expect that all the foreign notables with their great retinues are to get here at the same time will find themselves much mistaken. "Arriving day" will be several days.

Washington society is worth watching from the side lines, especially that part of the society which composes what in other towns would be called the smart set. There has been a rumor running along the avenues that the prince of Wales is to come to town to watch the proceedings and further to democratize himself.

The prince was here once before, and it is said that he wants to come here again. Even those persons who do not feel an overweening affection for the British empire seem to feel kindly disposed toward this young man.

Society also has heard that it is possible that the crown prince of Japan may make a visit to this town some time in the near future. It may be remembered that the prince intended to come here some time ago, but owing to circumstances over which he had no control, his traveling was cut short, and he had to content himself with a visit to England, where they made a great ado over him.

Washington society of the smart set kind would have a great time of it if it had two princes to entertain at once. As to the rest of the Washington world, it probably would manage to take the matter calmly, but there would be interest enough everywhere, although the Washington population is a little bit fed up on dignitaries, and by the new means of raising the necessary money.

MINISTER DISCUSSES HIS WIFE'S TROUBLES

Rev. A. H. Sykes, former pastor of the Watkins Park Presbyterian church, Nashville, Tenn., says: "After seeing what Tanlac has accomplished in my wife's case, I am convinced that it is a medicine of great power and extraordinary merit. I do not think I have ever seen anything give such prompt results. Mrs. Sykes had been in delicate health for ten months, suffering from stomach trouble and nervous breakdown. 'I frequently sought medical advice but Tanlac is the only thing that gave her any relief. After taking the medicine only a short time, she was able to sit up and help with the household duties. I think it only a short time until her health will be fully restored.'" Advertisement.

SIDEWALLS OF TIRES GO TO PIECES TOO SOON

"I've spent several years in the business," says Mr. A. C. Nyeum, Dayton Tire dealer of Clearville, Pa., Rt. 1 "and in that time I've learned a lot about what happens to tires."

"One thing I've noticed is this—that the side walls of many tires go to pieces a long time before they should. Frequently they give out, ending the life of the tire while the tread is still good. In some cases of course it's due to tears or cuts made by ruts or curb stones. But too often the trouble is due to plain deterioration of the side wall rubber, a 'cracking' or 'checking' that exposes the cord of fabric structure to the action of water, mud and sand."

"Now one reason why I'm so confident of the good service in Dayton Tires is that the sidewalls are made of a costly tread rubber compound. 'The Dayton sidewall will run for many thousands of miles without showing signs of checking and it will stand a lot of wear and tear. I don't want to invite users of Dayton Tires to scrape their tires along the curb at every chance, to look for deep ruts or to run in the car tracks, but when such punishment is unavoidable, I'll back Dayton to stand it.'—Adv."

"Why is a Bank?"

"In backward countries, like India, banks are little used by the people, money is hoarded, becoming a dead asset. A bank is a reservoir into which is drained thousands of small sums, easily wasted by themselves and the sums so accumulated become active agencies in the life of the community."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In memory of Simon E. England, who died August 9, 1921.

"So let him sleep that dreamless sleep, our sorrows clustering round his head."

Once again Death hath summoned a Brother Odd Fellow, and the golden gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome him to his home. He has completed his work in the ministering to the wants of the afflicted, in shedding light into darkened souls, and in bringing joy into the places of misery, and as his reward has received the plaudits, "well done", from the Supreme Master; and whereas, the all-wise and merciful Father has called our beloved and respected Brother home,

And whereas, he having been a true and faithful Brother of our Mystic Order, therefore be it

Resolved, that Rainsburg Lodge No. 730, I. O. O. F., in testimony of her loss, tenders to the family of the deceased Brother our sincere condolence in this deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

Green be his memory in the Order's heart. He loved so well, through all his life's true span; Bless'd be his rest, who acted well his part. Who honor'd God in doing good to man.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

York.—The shortage of the apple crop in York county is reflected by the illness of the cider and applebutter mills. Ordinarily the mills are busy at this season converting great quantities of fallen fruit into these products. Cider and applebutter will be very high in price, it is forecasted.

Middletown.—Stepping off a track to avoid a train, Robert Dagus, of this place, stepped directly in front of a rapidly approaching locomotive and was instantly killed.

Harrisburg.—Twenty suits against owners of dogs in Perry county who had failed to secure licenses for their animals were started by the state department of agriculture.

Danville.—Mrs. Victor Marks was severely burned and may lose her eyesight, and Miss Florence Fausey, a maid, was painfully burned here, when a gas heater, which had gone out, was relighted.

Reading.—Traveling all the way from Porto Rico, Mrs. Marie Mareles de Pena applied to the police here to locate her husband, from whom she received a postcard with postmark from Reading.

Sunbury.—Twenty-one separate suits for damages, totaling $250,000, were brought in the Northumberland county common pleas court by Mount Carmel residents against the Lehigh Valley Coal company for alleged injury to their property due to coal dirt from Big Shamokin creek being washed on their lands. They claim the coal corporation is liable, as this refuse came from the mines owned by the corporation.

Harrisburg.—Governor Sproul announced the members of the Pennsylvania State Fair Commission, which will make a study of the projects for a state fair, work out plans for an exhibition, together with estimates and select a site. The recommendations of the commission are to be made to the governor for transmission to the next legislature. An appropriation of $15,000 for expenses and studies was made. The commission will meet shortly and organize. The members are: P. M. Sharples, West Chester, four years; Harry F. Bovard, Greensburg, four years; C. F. Fendrick, Mercersburg, four years; John A. Harrisburg.—New warnings against the purchase of various mixtures for "gassing" peach tree borers, one of the most destructive enemies of fruit trees, have been issued by the department of agriculture, following analysis of compounds on sale. Some of the mixtures are adulterated and contain saltpeter and other materials declared "absolutely valueless" in the destruction of borers. Suits have been brought against a chemical firm at Hancock, Md., for the sale of alleged misbranded compounds.

Harrisburg.—Joseph Gaston, colored, of Rockville, N. C. and William Moates, white, of Petersburg, Fla., went to sleep under a freight train on a siding in the Enola yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and when the train moved Gaston's head was severed and Moates was so badly injured he was brought to the hospital here. He will recover.

Palmyra.—By the will of the late George W. Bowman the Salem Reformed church, Campbelltown, will receive $200 and Trinity Reformed church, Palmyra, $500.

Pottstown.—At the 25th annual convention of the Retail Merchants of Pennsylvania Harry W. Shaffer, of Lock Haven, was elected president of the organization for the sixth consecutive term. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, J. A. Edgar, Frankford; Ely Blou, Sunbury; R. A. Kerr, Titusville; H. Wesley Giddin, Pottstown; treasurer, W. H. Nelson, Chester; executive committee, Edward O. Spotts, Tarentum, and D. E. Durbin, Pittsburgh.

Towanda.—Ten persons, two of them women, were arrested, charged with gambling, when police raided a carnival being held under the auspices of the Moose lodge here.

Harwood.—One of the big turbines at the $3,000,000 Harwood plant of the Pennsylvania Power and Light company is being dismantled and will be replaced by a more powerful unit to furnish electricity for mines of the Luzerne-Carbon-Schuylkill district.

Harrisburg.—Nominating petitions were filed by Judges W. F. Solly, Montgomery orphans' court, Republican and Democrat; Charles E. Whitten, Westmoreland common pleas, Republican; H. W. Douglass, McKeesport, Allegheny, common pleas, and Thomas J. Baldrige, Republican, Blair.

Altoona.—Seven sons of Edmund McConnell, well-known retired Pennsylvania locomotive engineer of this place, are in the railroad service. Six of them are engineers. The other is an engine dispatcher.

Morrisville.—Despondent and grieving over the tragic death of his wife, which occurred five years ago when she upset a loaded bus and was killed, John Peloubet, aged 60 years, committed suicide by hanging himself to a tree. The unfortunate man sought a spot near the house where his wife met her death.

York.—Frank M. Bortner, a York attorney, was disbarred from practice in the York county courts on account of proven embezzlement from clients. Bortner's present whereabouts are unknown. The York County Bar Association instituted proceedings which resulted in the decree.

Brownsville.—When the car in which they were returning from a picnic crashed through a fence at the side of the road near Centreville and overturned, seven young men and a girl were injured, only one seriously. Hobert Sager, aged 26, of South Brownsville, is in the Brownsville General Hospital suffering from a fractured skull. His condition is critical. The other injured were treated by local physicians.

Berwick.—A carrier pigeon, bearing the name of Harry Quick, Clayville, N. Y., on a foot band, was killed by an automobile here.

Reading.—Overcrowded by those who sought to escape a downpour of rain, the porch of "Idlewyle," a large bungalow at Reading's "Coney Island" along the Tulpehocken, collapsed and seriously injured four persons. All the bungalows are six feet above the level of the creek, on posts and many took shelter under the porches.

Berwick.—Barbers here have reduced the price of haircuts to 30 cents with the same price for massages and shampoos.

Masterstown.—Four children of Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Hess, of near here, are ill with typhoid fever, contracted through drinking water from a well.

Hazleton.—The Ashmore and Weatherly shops of the Lehigh Valley railroad have been put on a five-day schedule.

Nesqueh.—Robert, 3-year-old son of Robert Schechterly, of this place, was seriously burned when he gasped the end of a live wire which had fallen near where he was playing.

Altoona.—In a collision between auto trucks here, Chauffeur Raymond Costlov, 28, saved his niece, Laura Malhot, aged 1 year, riding with him, but was himself seriously hurt.

Harrisburg.—Accidents decreased on both steam and electric railway lines in Pennsylvania during the first six months of this year, according to figures made public by the public service commission's bureau of accidents. Railroad figures show 262 persons killed and 2918 hurt, a decrease of 117 in fatalities and 961 in other accidents, as compared with 1920. Forty-seven persons were killed and 150 persons hurt in accidents involving automobiles. Electric railway accidents caused 62 deaths and 1164 injuries, decline of eight in fatalities and 185 in accidents of lesser degree.

Harrisburg.—Colors of the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, commanded by John W. Geary, later a major general and governor of Pennsylvania, have been presented to the state through Colonel John P. Nicholson, executive officer of the Gettysburg battlefield commission, and ordered placed in the capitol rotunda by Governor Sproul. The regiment was a Philadelphia command and left that city July 20, 1861, without colors, owing to some official mix-up, but Philadelphia people sent colors, which were carried until October, 1862, when the state furnished flags, carried through many a hard-fought field.

Harrisburg.—State authorities have joined with the Canonsburg board of health in an effort to check the outbreak of typhoid fever here.

Altoona.—The Huntington Presbytery has begun a campaign for the establishment of a home for aged women here.

Pittsburgh.—A ton of candy went up in smoke in a $30,000 blaze at the plant of the M. Davidson company here.

Seranton.—The $200,000 contract for remodeling the Elk Home here has been awarded to the M. T. Ruddy company, of this city.

DEMOCRATIC CONSTRUCTIVE LEGISLATION

With the Republican Senate and House at loggerheads, with Republican Senators and Representatives criticizing the administration, its methods and policies, with almost painful lack of leadership in both houses, with practically nothing yet accomplished in the way of legislation after four months of continuous session of Congress, it is refreshing to turn to the following record of constructive statesmanship made by the last Democratic administration, as set forth by Representative James C. Cantrill of Kentucky in his masterful speech on the tariff:

"The Republican party in all of its campaigns has charged that the Democratic party lacked constructive ability and was unable to properly conduct the Government. All fair minded people know, of course, that such a charge is purely for political effect and that such a charge is contrary to the history of our country. To call to mind those things fresh in the memory of the people I assert without fear of contradiction that during the eight years of the administration of Woodrow Wilson more constructive legislation in behalf of the people was written on the statute books of our Nation than under any previous administration in our history and the substantial achievements brought about during the eight years of Democratic control will make up the brightest pages of our National history."

"Under the Wilson administration the greatest war in the world's history was fought and won. Let us not forget that Woodrow Wilson was Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy in that great struggle. The American Army and Navy brought the World War to a successful conclusion and secured imperishable fame for the American Republic. The Democratic Administration financed not only the World War for our allies and came through without a panic and with the credit of our Nation secure—surely in a business way the most stupendous undertaking in history."

"The Democratic Party passed the Federal reserve law, which has made us the creditor Nation of the earth."

"The Democratic Party passed the Federal farm loan law, which enables the farmer to borrow money on long term notes at low rates of interest in order that the farms of our country might be developed and our food supply made secure."

"The Democratic Party passed the Underwood tariff law under which our Nation saw the greatest prosperity in its history."

"The Democratic Party and its leaders had control and won the war and the Republican Party during its two years of power has been unable to even make a treaty of peace."

"The Democratic Party passed the Smith-Lever Agricultural Extension Act, established the Bureau of Markets, the Bureau of Farm Management, the cotton future act, the grain grades bill, the co-operative farm administration act, and the Federal warehouse act."

"It was the Democratic Party which developed the parcel post act and gave the American people relief from the express companies' trust."

"The Democratic Party established the Department of Labor and gave the laboring men a member in the President's Cabinet."

"The Democratic Party passed the child labor act and the workmen's compensation act."

"The Democratic Party established a women's bureau in the Department of Labor, which has since been destroyed by a Republican Congress withholding appropriations for its support."

"It was a Democratic President who appeared before Congress and urged that the women suffrage amendment be submitted to the States for ratification."

"A list of measures enacted under a Republican administration for the public welfare could be named, but to what single measure can the Republican Party, since its two years in power, point with pride in the interest of the great majority of American citizens? Let it be remembered that the Republican Party has had a majority in both branches of Congress for the past two years."

"Our great leader, Woodrow Wilson, was stricken down before his administration came to a close, but the great record which the Democratic Party made under his leadership will always be an inspiration to those who love justice and to those whose hearts go out to struggling humanity. He was cut down in the prime of life, but his words and deeds will be forever honored and cherished because he labored for humanity with the ideals of the Democratic Party always before him as his guiding star. Let those who love justice and equality before the law; let those who believe in serving the masses rather than the classes; let those who want to see America take her rightful place as the leader of nations strike hands with the Democratic Party so that progress and not reaction shall be our national policy."

Big Army of Gunners.

There were 2,995,122 licensed gunners in this country last year, and it is said that there are 35,000 more who hunt game illegally. Of the total, there are about 200,000 women. Pennsylvania leads the list with 401,130 hunters licenses granted.

Meat Imports From China.

Chinese meat is imported into this country in the form of hams and sausage. The hams are cured in a manner similar to ours, but of a peculiar odor, and are of poor quality, judged by American tastes. The sausage is prepared in a different manner and is about the size of a finger. It is hard and dry and has an odor pronounced unpleasant to the occidental nose. These products are consumed exclusively by the Chinese, who consider it a delicacy.

Chapter XIV

Slipped out quietly and bought a few more—just to be on the safe side."

So it was sprung at last. Hatch was accusing us of the one thing that we hadn't done; that the boss knew we hadn't done.

"I'm afraid you'll have to try again, Mr. Hatch," he said, with a sour little smile. Then he added: "Anybody can make charges, you know."

Hatch jumped to his feet and he was almost foaming at the mouth.

"Right there is where we've got you!" he shouted. "You were too cautious to put one of your own men in the field, so you sent outside for your briber. He was a stranger, and he had to have help in finding the right men to buy. Dedmon, here, was out of a job—thanks to you and your meddling—and the steering stunt offered good pay. Do you want any more?"

The boss shook his head.

"It is a matter of complete indifference to me. I don't know in the least what you are talking about, and you'll pardon me, I hope, if I say that it doesn't greatly interest me."

"By heavens—I'll make it interest you! The easy-mark candidates were found and bought and paid for—and maybe they'll stay bought, and maybe they won't. But that isn't the point. For a little more money—my money, this time—each of these men has made an affidavit to the fact that railroad money was offered him. They don't say whether or not they accepted it, mind you, and that doesn't cut any figure. They have sworn that the money was tendered. That lets them out and lets you in. You don't believe it? I'll show you," and Hatch whipped a list of names from his pocket and slapped it upon the boss's desk. "Go to those men and ask them; if you want to carry it that far. They'll tell you."

I could see that the boss barely glanced at the list. The glib story of the bribery was like the bite of a slipping crane-hitch—slow to take hold. So far as we were concerned, of course, the charge fell flat; and upon any other hypothesis it was blankly incredible, unbelievable, absurd.

"The affidavits themselves would be much more convincing," I heard the boss say, "though even then I should wish to have reasonable proof that they were genuine."

Hatch was sitting down again and his grin showed his teeth unpleasantly.

"Do you think for a minute that I'd bring the papers here and trust them in your hands?" he rapped out insultingly. "Not much! But we've got them all right, as you'll find out if you balk and force us to use them."

At this point I could see that something in the persistent assurance of the man was getting under the boss's skin and giving him a cold chill. What if it were not the colossal bluff it had looked like in the beginning? What if... Like a blaze of lightning out of a clear sky a possible explanation hit me under the fifth rib, and I guess it hit the boss at about the same instant. What if President Dunton and the New York stock-jobbers, believing as they did that nothing but legislative favor would give them their trading capital in the depressed stock, had cut in and done this thing without consulting us?

The boss stirred uneasily in his chair and picked up the paper-knife—a little unconscious trick of his when he wanted time to gather himself.

"Perhaps you would be willing to give me the name of this briber, Mr. Hatch?" he said, after a little pause.

"As if you didn't know it!" was the scoffing retort. "There were two of them; one who was hired to do the talking while the real wire-puller stood aside and held the coin bag. We'll skip the hired man." Then he turned to the ex-sheriff: "Write out the name of the bag-holder for him, Dedmon," he commanded, tearing a leaf from his pocket note-book and, crumpling it, with a stubby pencil, into Dedmon's hands.

The map from Arrowhead county bent over his knee and wrote a name on the slip of paper, laying the slip on the drawn-out slide of the boss's desk when he had finished the slow penciling. The effect of the thing was all stare at the slip and heard him say, half to himself, "Howard Collingwood!"

Hatch followed up his advantage promptly. He was afoot and struggling into his overcoat when he said: "You've got what you were after, Norcross, and it has got your goat. We've known all along that you were only bluffing and sparring to gain time. We've nailed you to the cross. You let this deal with Marshall and his people stand as it's made, or we'll show you up for what you are. That's

"Just that. We'll give you plenty of time to think it over. The joint deal with C. S. & W. goes into effect tomorrow, and it's up to you to sit tight in the boat and let us alone. If you don't—if you butt in with the ground-leases, or in any other way—the story will go to the newspapers and every sucker on the line of the P. S. L. will know how you've been pulling the wool over his eyes with all this guff about 'justice first' and 'the public be pleased.' You're no fool, Norcross. You know they won't lay it to Dunton and the New Yorkers. You've taken pains to advertise it far and wide that you are running this railroad on your own responsibility, and the people are going to take you at your word."

Dedmon, and the lawyer—who hadn't spoken a single word in all the talk—were edging toward the door. The boss didn't make any answer to Hatch's wind-up except to say, "Is that all?"

The other two were out, now, and Hatch turned to stick his ugly jaw out at the boss, and to say, just as if I hadn't been there to look on and hear him:

"No, by Jupiter—it isn't all! In the past six months you've made Gus Henckel and me lose a cold half-million, Norcross. For a less provocation than that, many a man in this neck of woods has been sent back east in the baggage-car, wearing a wooden overcoat. You climb down, and do it while you can stay alive!"

For some time after the three men went away the boss sat staring at the slip of paper on the desk slide. At last he got up, sort of tiredlike, I thought, and said to me: "Jimmie, you go down and see if you can find a taxi, and we'll drive out to Major Kendrick's. I promised him I'd go out to the house, you remember."

When our taxi stopped at the major's gate, somebody was coming out just as we were getting ready to go in. The man had the visor of his big flat golf cap pulled down well over his eyes, but I knew him just the same. It was Collingwood!

This looked like more trouble. What was the president's nephew doing here? I wondered about that, and also, if the boss had recognized Collingwood. If he had, he made no sign, and a moment later I had pushed the bell-push and Maisie Ann was opening the door for us.

"Both of you? oh, how nice!" she said, with a smile for the boss and a queer little grimace for me. "Come in. This is our evening for callers. Cousin Basil is out, but he'll be back pretty soon, and he left word for you to wait if you got here before he did."

That message was for the boss, and I lagged behind in the dimly lighted hall while she was showing him into the back parlor. I had dropped down on the hall settee, in the end of it next to the coat-rack, and when Mrs. Sheila came down-stairs and went through the hall, she didn't see me. A second later I heard the boss jump up and say, "At last! It seems as if you had been gone a year rather than a fortnight," and then Maisie Ann came dodging out and plunked herself down on the settee beside me.

You needn't tell me that we had no right to sit there listening; I know it well enough. On the other hand, I was just shirky enough to shift the responsibility to Maisie Ann. She didn't make any move to duck, so I didn't.

"You came out to see Cousin Basil?" Mrs. Sheila was saying to the boss.

And then: "He had a telephone call from the Bullard, and he asked me to tell you to wait." After that, I guess she sat down to help him wait, for pretty soon we heard her say: "Cousin Basil has told me a little about the new trouble: have you been having another bad quarter of an hour?"

"The worst of the lot," the boss said gravely, and from that he went on to tell her about the Hatch visit and what had come of it; how the grafters had a new claw hold on him, now, made possible by an unwarranted piece of meddling on the part of the New York people in the political game.

It was while he was talking about this that Maisie Ann grabbed me by the wrist and dragged me bodily into the darkened front parlor, the door to which was just on the other side of the coat rack. I thought she had come to her right senses, at last, and was making the shift to break off the eavesdropping. That being the case, I was simply horrified when I found that she was merely fixing it so that we could both see and hear. The sliding doors between the two parlors were cracked open about an inch, and before I realized what she was doing she had pulled me down on the floor beside her, right in front of that crack.

"If you move or make a noise, I'll scream and they'll come in here and find us both!" she hissed in my ear; and because I didn't know what else to do with such a kiddish little termagant, I sat still. I was dastardly. I know; but what was I to do?

When the boss finished telling her about the Hatch talk, Mrs. Sheila said: "You mean that Mr. Dunton and his associates sent somebody out here to influence the election?"

"Yes; that is it, precisely. But how did you know?"

"You made the inference perfectly plain," she countered. "I have a reasoning mind, Graham; haven't you discovered it before this?"

The boss nodded soberly. "I have discovered a good many things about you during the past six months: one of them is that there was never another woman like you since the world began."

Knowing, as I did, that she had a husband alive and kicking around somewhere, it seemed as if I just couldn't stay there and listen to what a break of that kind on the boss's part was likely to lead up to. But Maisie Ann gripped my wrist until she hurt. "You must listen!" she whispered fiercely. "You're taking care of him, and you've got to know!"

As on many other earlier occasions, Mrs. Sheila slid away from the sentimental side of things just as easy, as turning your hand over.

"You are too big a man to let an added difficulty defeat you now," she remarked calmly, going back to the business field. "You are really making a miraculous success. I have just spent two weeks in the capital, as you know, and everybody is talking about you. They say you are in a fair way to solve the big problem—the problem of bringing the railroads and the people together in a peaceable and profitable partnership—which is as it should be."

"It can be done; and I could do it right here on the Pioneer Short Line if I didn't have to fight so many different kinds of devils at the same time," said the boss, scowling down at the fire in the grate. And then with a quick jerk of his head to face her: "You sent the major a wire from the capital last night, telling him to persuade me not to go to Strathcona. Why did you do it? And how did you know I was thinking of going?"

For the first time in the whole six months I saw Mrs. Sheila get a little flustered, though she didn't show it much, only a little more color in her cheeks.

"Some day, perhaps, I may tell you, but I can't now," she said sort of hurriedly. And then: "You mustn't ask me."

"But you did send the wire?" "Yes."

"And you also sent another to Upton Van Brit?"

"I did."

The boss smiled. "That second message was an after-thought. You were afraid I'd be stubborn and go, anyway. That was some more of your marvelous inner reasoning. Tell me, Sheila, did you know that there was going to be a broken rail-joint set to kill me on that trip?"

That got her in spite of her heavenly calm and I could see her press her pretty lips together hard.

"Was that what they did?" she asked, a bit trembly.

He nodded. "Van Brit was on the pilot engine ahead of my car, and he found it. There was no harm done. It was bad enough, God knows, to set a trap that would have killed everybody on my train; but this other thing that has been pulled off tonight is even worse. Mr. Dunton and his unprincipled followers have set a thing on foot here which is due to grind us all to powder. Past that, they have contrived to handcuff me so that I can't make a move without pulling down consequences of a personal nature upon President Dunton, himself."

"Now my 'marvelous inner reasoning' has gone quite blind," she said, with a queer little smile. "You'll have to explain."

"It's simple enough," said the boss shortly. "If Mr. Dunton had sent only hired emissaries out here to bribe the members of the legislature—but he didn't; he included a member of his own family."

I was looking straight at Mrs. Sheila as he spoke, and I saw a sudden frightened shock jump into the slate-gray eyes. Just for a second. Before you could count one, it was gone and she was saying quietly:

"A member of his own family? That is very singular, isn't it? Was there—was this thing that was done actually criminal?" she asked, just breathing it at him.

"It was, indeed. The election laws of this state have teeth. It is a penitentiary offense to bribe either the electorate or the lawmakers."

Over fifty years ago a young physician practiced widely in Pennsylvania and became famous for his uniform success in the curing of disease. This was Dr. R. V. Pierce who afterwards established himself in Buffalo, N. Y., and placed his "Golden Medical Discovery" in the drug stores of the United States. When you feel run-down, out of sorts, blue and despondent try the amazing influence of Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form. Nearly a million bottles were sold last year.

Curfew Has Worked Well.

In the Middle ages a bell was rung as a signal for fires to be covered up for the night and consequently for the people to go to bed. The word curfew is derived from the French words, couvrir, to cover, and feu, fire. In the United States a curfew has been sounded to warn young people to be within doors unless accompanied by adults. It is said that over 3,000 towns and cities in this country now have curfew ordinances and some of them report as large a decrease as 80 per cent in juvenile delinquency since the enactment of such laws.—Exchange.

Erasing Rubber.

There was a Philadelphia man, Hyman L. Lipman, who noticed that when writing with a lead pencil it was inconvenient to reach for a piece of erasing rubber to rub something out. It is the habit of a piece of erasing rubber to disappear mysteriously; everybody had noticed it. But if the butt end of the pencil contained a small eraser, it cannot get away. This was the idea that struck Mr. Lipman, who patented it. It brought him a fortune.

KEEP BROOD SOWS IN WINTER

Animals Must Be Properly Fed in Order to Farrow Large Number of Healthy Pigs.

During the winter the brood sows should be maintained as cheaply as possible, but at the same time they must be properly fed in order to farrow a large number of healthy, well-grown pigs in the spring. Best results are obtained when sufficient food is given to produce daily gains on the sows of one-half or three-fourths of a pound. To do this the grain fed must be limited, and diluted with some roughage, for unless the ration has sufficient bulk, the sows will become constipated and hungry, due to the undistended condition of the digestive tract. Legume hays are the chief roughage available at this season, and their use will cheapen the cost of feeding.

Either alfalfa, clover, soy-bean or cow-pea hay makes an excellent roughage, and when fed, little or no high-priced protein concentrate is needed to balance the corn. Bright leafy alfalfa hay gives the best results of any of these roughages. Alfalfa meal is simply the best grade of alfalfa hay chopped into a meal. Clover hay contains almost as much nourishment as alfalfa hay, and soy-bean hay, cut and cured when the beans are almost ripe, is a very nutritious feed. Cowpea hay should be cut when the first peas are ripening and consequently does not have as high food value as soy-bean hay. Great care must be exercised in curing soy-bean and cowpea hay, for the stalks are very heavy and succulent and unless thoroughly dried are apt to mold. Under no condition should a brood sow be fed upon any roughage which is not bright, nutritious, and free from smut or mold. She does not relish or thrive on such inferior feed. It is very apt to cause severe digestive troubles, and may lead to the loss of her litter.

WINTER ATTENTION TO EWES

Success or Failure of Lamb Crop Next Spring Depends on Care Given Breeding Flock.

The success or failure of the lamb crop next spring will depend to a large extent upon the care given the breeding flock during the winter. In order to secure active, well-developed lambs, a large percentage of which are twins, it is absolutely necessary to have the ewes in a thrifty condition at mating time, and conditions of feeding and management during the winter months must be such that the flock will be maintained in good flesh, strong and vigorous.

WAY TO AVOID HOG CHOLERA

Prevent Exposure of Susceptible Animals to the Germ Which Causes the Disease.

To avoid hog cholera: First, avoid exposure of susceptible hogs to the germ which causes the disease; second, hogs when exposed to hog cholera should at least be injected with anti-hog-cholera serum, which will protect them through the period of exposure; third, produce permanent immunity in the hogs by administering virus at the same time protective serum is injected.

Turn Onto the Road to Church

Church helps a man from his moral ruts and starts him on the highway of right thinking and right living. The longer we travel in ruts the deeper they become and the more difficult it is to get out of them.

The churches of this community are here to help you out of both social and moral ruts. They provide Christian fellowship and offer the only solution for sin: the gospel of Jesus Christ. No man ever regretted the time he spent in church attendance. Let us help you out of your ruts—perhaps you will help us out of ours. Come to church Sunday.

The Modern Spirit.

Two little boys who prided themselves on their courage were sitting over the nursery fire and discussing apparitions. "But," said one very confidentially, "shouldn't you really be in a most awful funk if you did see a ghost—a most evil-looking one, I mean?" "Good gracious, no!" was the boastful reply. "I should just say, carelessly, in a throaty voice 'Good evening, Devil; going strong'."

THE U.S. USCO TREAD

Here is the U. S. Usco Tread, with a long-established standard of service among motorists who have an eye to value, as well as to price. While selling for less than the other tires in the U. S. Fabric line, the Usco has earned a reputation for quality and dependable economy which is not exceeded by any tire in its class.

From the makers of U.S. Royal Cords to the users of Fabric Tires

"Giving to the fabric tire user fresh, live tires. Being made now. Being shipped now."

IN all of modern merchandising the biggest conundrum is the fabric tire situation.

Around 70% of all car owners use fabric tires.

Their instinct for quality is as strong and insistent as any one else's.

Why, then, are they offered such hodge-podge stocks of "discount tires," "odd lots," "seconds," "retreads" and other so-called bargains of uncertain origin?

Sooner or later the public always seeks out quality. As a matter of self-protection—if for no other reason. The out-and-out opinion in favor of U. S. Fabric Tires has spread more this year than it ever did.

People have gotten very close to the U. S. policy. Felt it. Benefited by it. And passed the word along.

It's a policy settled to one standard for all U. S. Tires. Whether fabrics or cords. Small sizes or large.

Giving to the fabric tire user fresh, live tires. Being made now. Being shipped now.

All the original U. S. vitality and service comes through when you buy a U. S. Fabric Tire.

"Usco," "Chain," "Nobby." Three different treads.

Built by the same brains, the same policy, the same quality ideals that have made U. S. Royal Cords the standard measure of tire worth.

Elder-Down Duck.

There are two varieties of elder duck—the common elder and the king's elder, the latter supplying the down which is exported from Greenland, while that of the former comes mainly from Iceland. Ten thousand pounds of down is obtained annually from the latter country. The elder is larger than the common duck. The drake is black with a white back, while the female is brown with white spots.

"THERE'S DEATH IN THE POT"

A Celebrated London Doctor Used the Above to Emphasize the Danger of Overeating. Worse Than Overeating is Failure to Eliminate Waste.

Nature could not devise a way to feed and repair the body without the production of considerable waste matter. But Nature provided for the regular, thorough elimination of such waste. To disregard her intention is to break a natural law. Whether you help Nature by wise or foolish means is left to your own judgment. To simply force bowel movement is unwise, unnatural and ineffective. You can choose harsh, drastic, violently acting drugs or take such without caring what their action or effect is, or you can select some old time-proven, trial-tested remedy, that has been used for 70 years or more by thousands of people all over the world, with the result that it has won an enviable reputation as a reliable household remedy. Take Beecham's for example. All the world knows Beecham's; a goodly part of the world uses Beecham's, has been using it for years, handing it down from father to son, from mother to daughter, for generations after generation, recommending it to others. In spite of such extensive and general use, who ever heard complaint or criticism of Beecham's? That in itself is a powerful recommendation. Don't take anything for granted. Reason it out. All druggists sell Beecham's—are glad to sell them. Beecham's reputation has been made by its users—not by its sellers.

BUICK PROOF

Today when one wants to buy an automobile he becomes so confused by drastic claims of superiority by salesmen of their respective cars that one scarcely knows which car to select.

For your benefit we recently completed a test for gasoline consumption, oil consumption, high gear performance and cooling facilities, using a Standard Buick 22-45 Model, and driving through the mountain section to Hancock and return.

The test was made and officially observed by Mr. Williamson of the Evening Times, and Mr. Donnelly of the Daily News. Mr. A. E. Glisan doing the driving and Mr. George Henderson as mechanic.

The car was driven to Hancock and return, crossing 10 mountain ranges with elevations from 1200 to 1700 feet above sea level, to our garage, a distance of eighty-three miles. The car carried four passengers, whose aggregate weight was 625 pounds. 3 1/2 gallons of Standard Oil Company gasoline was used on the trip, showing the remarkable mileage of 23.8 miles per gallon. The oil consumption was slightly less than 1 pint, and showed at least 664 miles per gallon of Polarine. The entire distance was driven on high gear, and the water in the radiator was at a drinking temperature at all summits.

The following details of the trip will prove interesting:

SPRING HOPE

The cool nights make us fear an early frost.

Our vicinity was well represented at the Union S. S. picnic at Fishertown on Saturday, also at Bethel park camp meeting on Sunday.

Miss Richards, a trained nurse of the Cumberland hospital, spent a few days of her vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoover.

Kenneth Rininger met with a rather serious accident one day last week as he was in the act of dumping a cart load of corn husks out the front door of the barn, he lost his balance and fell to the ground below, breaking one arm in three places and the other once, and bruising and cutting his foot pretty badly. Dr. Shogenthal was called and set the broken bones and the young man is getting along fairly well.

Harry Riseling, wife and two daughters, of Canton, Ohio, visited the former's cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Hershberger over Monday night and spent part of Tuesday with D. P. Deaner and wife.

J. Ed McMullen and sons, of Whetum, spent over Sunday with William D. and Cora Hoover. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eshelman, of Monessen, and Mrs. Furl McMullen and two children, of Johnstown, were week-end visitors at Pierre Hershbergers.

Mrs. John Blattenberger has been visiting the past week in Altoona. Pilgrim.

NOTICE TO PARENTS

The Bedford Township Schools will open on September 12. All children between the ages of 8 and 12 must attend 100 per cent. All those between the ages of 12 and 16, 70 per cent. Compulsory attendance for those between the ages of 12 and 16 to begin October 17.

POINT

On Saturday last while Virgil Bowers and Jacob Bowser, both grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Blackburn, were on their way from Altoona to attend the picnic and camp meeting their automobile ran up on a bank near Catfish, Blair County, and turned over. Both young men were caught under it and when help came, it was found that Mr. Bowers had one leg broken above the knee and the other badly cut and bruised, and Mr. Bowser's legs were badly cut and bruised. Bowers is in the Mercy hospital at Altoona, and Bowser is up and around but badly shaken up.

Sunday morning Aug. 14 Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Earnest had born to them a fine baby boy. Mother and son are doing as well as can be expected. This makes two births of boys in two homes not sixty feet apart within a week, and it is hard to tell whether Robert Gohn or Floyd Earnest is the prouder over their young sons.

On Sunday night, August 7th a fine large boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gohn. Both mother and son are getting along nicely. Mrs. Samuel Halleass, of Juniata Township, is spending a week or more taking care of the mother, who is her daughter.

Wednesday morning, August 10, J. W. Hissong and wife and Mr. Shaffer, of Windber, and Mr. Andy, wife and son, of Pittsburgh, made a short call on your correspondent and family. They went to Bedford in the afternoon to have their car repaired, and then returned to Windber. Miss Anna Hissong, who has been visiting friends for the last month accompanied them.

Scott Hissong, of Windber, came over on Friday last and spent until Saturday evening with his grand parents. He then went to Bedford. Scott served about two years in the Navy during the World war, and was in active service nearly all the time. He returned to Windber on Monday. He is employed in the Electrical Department of the Berwin White Company.

Mrs. Wilson Kinsey and daughter, of Johnstown, are visiting her brothers, the Wonder brothers, W. C. and Harry, of this place, and Russell, of Spring Hope.

Thomas B. Nunemaker is reported on the sick list at the present time. It is hard on Mr. Nunemaker to be off from work.

On Monday evening, August 8, Mrs. Frank Gohn gave a very successful surprise party on her daughter, Miss Catharine, the occasion being her fourteenth birthday. There were quite a number present from Somerset County, New Paris, Springhope, and all the surrounding country. The evening was spent by the older folks in pleasant conversation while the younger folks played games and all had a good time. Dainty refreshments were served, and all congratulated Miss Catherine and wished her many happy returns of the day.

PLEASANTVILLE

Dr. H. A. Shimer, wife and daughter and Miss Jennie Kane spent Monday evening with relatives in Fishertown.

Mr. Harry Hetrick, of Philadelphia, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Minnie Hetrick, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin MacGregor is visiting relatives in Youngstown, Ohio.

Rev. J. D. Hammer, of Salix, spent a few days with his mother, Mrs. Mary Hammer.

Miss Beatrice Smith is ill with typhoid fever.

Miss June Walker returned to her home in Johnstown after spending a week with her cousin, Jennie Kane. Mr. and Mrs. Sewell MacGregor and Lloyd MacGregor, all of Johnstown, spent Sunday with relatives at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bender and children, of Windber, spent a few days with Mrs. Bender's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Weyant. Miss Belle Witaker, of Philadelphia, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Prosser.

ROUND KNOB

We have been having lots of rain for the past week, making it very hard for the farmers to get their oats away.

Mrs. Wade H. Figard and daughter, Amelia, autoed to Bedford on Friday last where they made a pleasant call at Mrs. Victor Barkmans.

Elmer Hinrich, Harvey Wright, Harvey Clark and wife, Albert Figard, wife and son, John, Roy L. Figard, wife and son, Kenneth, attended Crystal Springs camp meeting.

The ball game at Washington Park last week was one of the most interesting of the season. The score was 3--1 in favor of Coaldale.

Wade H. Figard and two sons, David and Clarence, and Elma Hinrich autoed to Bedford Springs on Friday last, where they attended to legal business.

Carlos O'Neal attended the ball game at Entriaken on Saturday. He reports a very interesting game.

James Porter, of Allegheny, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Carlos O'Neal for a few days.

Edna Clark and Harvey Thomas were united in marriage at Hollidaysburg on Tuesday last.

Thomas R. Winter, Earl Clark, John Mitchell, Harmon Wright and Marlam Meek were visitors at the home of Wade H. Figard on Sunday last.

Mrs. Raymond Figard visited at the home of Mike Goworty on Sunday last.

Jesse Sweet, of Everett, was seen in our village on last Monday demonstrating his Studebaker car.
